THE British Labour Party National Executive is due to meet tomorrow, when the outcome of the secret conference of Transport House members at Dorking over the week-end will be studied. The Executive will then start putting together its statement of policy upon which the next general election will be fought. The Executive is wise to draw up its statement of policy in advance of the secret Transport House conference at Shanklin, on the Isle of Wight, and had to revise the document, the National Executive Committee, the T.U.C. cooperative movement, Mr. Aneurin Bevan and Mr. Morrison, have been given a chance to let off steam, and to add their piece to a long analysis of the last general election results submitted to the conference by Morgan Phillips, the Party secretary.

THE statement of policy now being prepared would be in the ordinary way, come before the Labour Party's conference in October, and be subjected to rank and file scrutiny and debate. It may do so. But the risk of a government defeat on a general election and of general elections long before the executive, who will be able to claim that their statement of the Party's programme is based on decisions reached by leaders of every phase in the wide range of labour. The Executive must go carefully. It has not been on the head of terms with the T.U.C. lately. The cooperative movement has been critical. Aneurin Bevan, whose hold on the workers and on a fearful group of back-benchers is as strong as ever, has been a thorn in the side of the Executive. It has not been on the head of terms with the T.U.C. lately. The cooperative movement has been critical. Aneurin Bevan, whose hold on the workers and on a fearful group of back-benchers is as strong as ever, has been a thorn in the side of the Executive.

THERE is little doubt that the main conflict at Dorking ranged about the question of nationalization; and that the chief antagonists were Mr. Morrison and Mr. Aneurin Bevan. It is believed that Morrison put in a long written document, in which he called for moderation. He is known to favour a policy of consolidation and improvement of existing measures of state ownership, whilst leaving well alone, for the time being, all other industries and utilities that have been marked down, from time to time, for nationalization. Bevan's view is that not less Socialism, but more is wanted. He argues that votes lost to the Tories in the last election cannot be regained by a show of weakness. They were lost because of Tory proposals which caught the middle class, factory more effectively than Labour proposals did. But the main aim of Labour should be to make thoroughly sure of the working-class vote and to go out for the agricultural vote. He is said to favour nationalization of sugar, cement, the water supply, cold storage, electricity, housing, and the universal mail distribution. Whenever Socialism has gone out to get the middle class vote, it has become a middle class party, as in France and Belgium; and Mr. Bevan will have argued with that gusto which keeps both Government and Party jumping, there is no secret in that.

THE T.U.C. will not have let Dorking pass without making it clear to cabinet ministers and particularly to Sir Stafford Cripps, that the wage restraint policy is becoming a painful test of trade union loyalty. Congress delegates will have pointed out that if there is not to be a lift in some of the wage scales, there must be effective measures to stabilize household costs. Higher family allowances and a removal of the purchase tax will also have been put forward as a means of appealing the workers and of preventing a situation in which the T.U.C. will no longer be able to exercise discipline over the disgruntled unions. All in all, the Executive will have a hard time of it trying to set forth the statement of policy. If the situation is as described on a Party crisis, it is at least likely to be called a crisis.

Stricter Road Control Ahead

The Minister of Communications, Mr. David Remes, last night got the green light from the Knesset for his campaign to combat death on the roads. The House unanimously passed the first reading of a bill for stiffer penalties for traffic offenders.

The bill increases the maximum punishment for second convictions on a dozen traffic violations to five years' imprisonment, with the alternative of a fine, and the suspension of driving license.

Offences thus punishable range from driving without a license to driving recklessly at a dangerous speed. On first conviction, they are punishable by a maximum of two years' imprisonment and a £1,000 fine.

It also provides for summary trials of traffic offenders and for traffic reforms including the division of highways into two classes, for heavy and passenger traffic respectively. This legislation is only part of the Minister's overall plan. Other aspects, which Mr. Remes explained to the House, included the opening of special traffic courts in Tel Aviv, Jerusalem and Haifa for the speedy trial of violators. He also said that 50 more traffic policemen will be put on the roads with vehicles and equipment. The traffic force now numbers 180 and most of the men spend a large part of their time giving evidence in court.

Driving tests will be made stricter and will include aptitude tests. Mr. Remes said the debate marking the first reading occupied all of last night's session and a host of ideas were put forward. In his reply, Mr. Remes said that most of the ideas had already been suggested to him.

M.A.C. Discusses Border Control

The Israel-Jordan Mixed Armistice Commission discussed questions dealing with border incidents and their prevention when it met in Jerusalem yesterday. The meeting lasted two and a half hours.

CAMP PICKETS ISSUE RAISED IN KNESSET

By MOSHE BRILLIANT

A call for a debate on the picketing of immigrants in the Rosh Ha'ayin camp by organized workers from Petah Tikva caused an uproar in the Knesset during yesterday's session. The issue was raised in an impassioned speech by Mr. Haim Cohen-Magori (Herut), who charged that immigrants from Yemen were being maltreated.

Mrs. Golda Myerson, the Minister of Labour, replied hotly that the dispute at Petah Tikva was not between Yemenite immigrants and old settlers but between Yemenites who had left the transit camp a month or two ago and those who were still in the camp.

The camp inmates, she said, could afford to undercut the immigrants living in Petah Tikva because their food, clothing and shelter was assured while those who had left the camps had to hold out for a living wage. With an angry look at the benches of the right-wing parties, Mrs. Myerson said that the farmers of Petah Tikva who were fighting to employ the camp inmates had not been motivated by compassion but by the attraction of cheaper labour.

Leaves for Growers
She said that the labour exchanges had assumed the unenviable task of fairly distributing available employment. She added categorically that the Government cultivation loans this summer would not be extended to growers who did not take on labour through organized channels.

Then Mr. Israel Bar Yehuda (Mapam) attacked Herut, charging that they were playing a double game. The National Labour Organization (Herut-controlled) in Petah Tikva had joined in picketing the Rosh Ha'ayin camp, while its representatives in the Knesset were protecting the interests of the farmers, he said. Answering shouts of protest from the Herut benches, he thundered through the loud speaker that this was a continuation of what had happened after the first World War when the farmers had called British Police to protect cheap Arab labour in places that were picketed by organized Jewish workers. At this, the Mayor of Petah Tikva, Mr. Yosef Sapir (General Zionists) joined in the protests.

Right of Pickets
Mr. Sapir sought to shift the focus of the debate to another question: by what legal right did the workers of Petah Tikva besiege the Yemenite immigrants in their camp? Mr. Isahar Harari (Progressive) was also perturbed by this aspect, and advocated

Persia Signs Agreement For American Arms

WASHINGTON, Tuesday (AP). — Persia has signed an agreement with the U.S. which clears the way for an early shipment of American arms.

The Persian Government was the last of 13 nations, sharing in the current $1.510m. arms programme, to agree to terms on which aid will be furnished.

The State Department announcement said: "As a result of this understanding, the U.S. will immediately arrange for manufacture or other procurement of military items to be furnished to Persia."

The share for Persia had not been disclosed but it is understood to be over $10m. A Persian military mission has been in the U.S. for several weeks arranging for arms shipments.

Today's action was followed by an exchange of diplomatic notes between Under-Secretary of State James Webb and the Persian Charge d'Affaires. Both diplomats emphasized that the purpose of American aid was to increase Persian ability to defend herself and not to endanger peace.

The policy of our country is to work for peace, not to prepare for war," Mr. Webb said. "The sole purpose of our military assistance programme is to help supply means of self defence."

Persia desires nothing but peace and is anxious to carry out her plans for economic and social development, attainment of which depends on internal security and national defence," the Persian representative said.

U.S. Cars to Israel
WASHINGTON, Tuesday (UP). — The Commerce Department today said that during 1949 Israel had imported 2,990 cars and buses valued at more than $6,700,000 of which the U.S. supplied about $3,550,000 worth.

But as an Opposition member he felt he had the right to suspect the worst. His proposal, therefore, was that a clause be added providing that titles including the word "Minister" may be borne only by members of the Government. His motive was to prevent the Government from appointing deputy ministers without reference to the Knesset.

Vote Postponed
Mapam took up Dr. Bader's point. Mr. Haim Rubiuk asked the Minister of Justice whether there was any such title in the Government, and whether the Cabinet contemplated making any such appointments. The Minister replied that to the best of his knowledge there was no such office in the Government. But when there were crises from Opposition benches that there was such a position listed in the Government Year Book under the Ministry of Defence, Mr. Rosen said he had no knowledge but he would investigate.

Mapam then asked that the voting on the bill be held up until the question was answered. This motion was put for a vote and some Coalition supporters voted for it. There was no opposition and action on the bill was thus held up.

Locker Reports On Iraq Immigration

A report on the immigration from Iraq was given to the Jewish Agency Executive at its meeting in Jerusalem yesterday by the Chairman, Mr. Berl Locker. He also presented details of immigration from other countries.

The picketing of the Rosh Ha'ayin immigrant camp was then discussed. The Absorption Department was not held to be responsible since the matter was one between the unorganized workers and the Labour Exchanges. Suggestions were made for registering the immigrants with the Labour Exchanges.

A committee was appointed to draft the proposals for submission to the Central Labour Exchange and the Government Agency Coordinating Board.

Mr. H. Greenberg discussed the World Hebrew Congress which is due to be held in the capital during July and presented the proposals of the Planning Committee.

Friendly Enemies

The Syrian Defence Minister, Akram Hourani, said the Arabs will be friendly with the Soviets for the same reason that they were friendly with Germany during the war, the "New York Times" reported from Beirut.

Hourani said that there are three types of friends: your own friend, the friend of a friend, and the enemy of your own enemy. Russia, he said, was the enemy of the Arabs. He said that Russian aid depends on how the Arab states will use their opportunities from time to time.

'Times' Criticizes League on Jordan

LONDON, Tuesday (UP). — "The Times" in a special report on "Jordan's Place in Arabia," today criticized Arab League opposition to Jordan's incorporation of Arab-held Palestine.

"It is in Arab interest that Jordan should be strong," the report said. "Many observers, therefore, wonder why the League is so stubborn and resists amalgamation of Arab Palestine with Jordan and Syria, which would not only strengthen each partner economically, but also would have the merit in Arab eyes of helping to release an Arab country from foreign dependence (on Britain)."

The "Times" declared that discord in the Arab League, as a result of the annexation of Jordan, "is a remarkable indication of the Hashemite Kingdom's key position in the Arab world. The self-appointed government of all Palestine" set itself up at Qaza under the domination of the ex-Mufti of Jerusalem and claimed to represent all Palestine Arabs.

"It soon became increasingly clear that neither the Arab League, nor the so-called Palestine leaders—most of whom had fled at the start of the struggle to comfortable shelter in neighbouring countries—retained much influence in Arab lands, and that Palestine Arabs were looking more and more to Jordan as their shield and hope for the future."

U.S. Declines Comment On Arms for Egypt

CAIRO, Tuesday (Reuters). — The U.S. Embassy here declined to comment last night on press reports that Egypt was negotiating an arms agreement with the United States.

Embassy spokesman said that all the Arab states had sought American arms at one time or another, adding: "But they will have to pay for them."

American official circles here believe that only small arms would be made available.

JORDAN ARMY DAY TODAY

Preparations have been concluded in Amman for the celebration of Army Day today, according to Radio Ramallah. Bombers of the Royal Jordan Airforce will participate in the programme for the first time in Jordan history, the broadcast said. King Abdullah will review the Arab Legion at the Amman airfield, where seating accommodations have been prepared for 10,000 spectators. It was reported.

Among the spectators will be an Iraqi military delegation, including an officer with the rank of Brigadier, the Commander of the Royal Iraqi Airforce, and the head of the Baghdad Royal Staff College and Saleh Bey Jalal, the Iraqi Minister of the Interior and Acting Prime Minister. Radio Ramallah said. Other delegations are expected from the Yemen, according to "A-Nahda."

A Lebanese delegation under the chairmanship of Camille Bey Chamous arrived in Amman, while a number of Jerusalem delegates left the lines on Tuesday afternoon to attend the parade, according to Ramallah Radio.

Talks on Belgian Air Agreement

TEL AVIV, Tuesday. — The initial talks on a bilateral air agreement between Israel and Belgium were opened here today when M. Jean Dubois, the Belgian Minister, met representatives of the Ministries of Foreign Affairs and of Communications.

M. Dubois was accompanied by M. Gilbert Ferrier, the President of the Belgian national airline, Sabena, who flew here specially for the talks, which are expected to last until Thursday. Although the Belgian company flies to Israel regularly, no permanent agreement on the services has been signed. This is one of the points to be discussed.

Ten Points for Ending Cold War 50,000-Man Force Carried by Lie to Big Four In Guise of Police

LAKE SUCCESS, Tuesday (UP). — U.N. Secretary General Trygve Lie has laid before the leaders of the Big Four a ten-point programme for ending the cold war, diplomatic sources said last night.

The details of M. Lie's programme could not be learned immediately, but it was reliably understood that they dealt with the cold war and its settlement in more concrete terms than he had used in any previous communication.

One of his points, it was believed, outlined specifically a proposal on Chinese representation in the U.N., an issue which has split the organization for the past 18 weeks. M. Lie favours admission of the Chinese Communists if investigations show that they control the country and "are habitually obeyed" by the bulk of the population.

Another point, diplomatic sources believed, carried forward M. Lie's proposal for a special "peace mission" of the Security Council to be attended by the Big Four Chiefs of State or Foreign Ministers.

It was believed that he delivered his programme first to Mr. Truman when he conferred with the President and the Secretary of State in Washington last month. Later, he gave copies to Whitehall and the Quai d'Orsay.

Informants believed that he gave identical notes to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky on his arrival in Moscow. Marshal Stalin received M. Lie three days later at which time, it was speculated, the Soviet leader gave his answer which the Secretary-General is bringing back in a second round of conferences with Western leaders.

Negotiations on Schuman Proposal to Begin Soon

PARIS, Tuesday (AP). — French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman said today that negotiations will open soon on his proposal to pool the coal and steel industries of Western Europe.

He indicated to the Foreign Affairs Committee of the National Assembly that these negotiations would probably include other countries than Germany.

M. Schuman spent most of his time before the closed session of the committee assuring the deputies that there was no Government plot to bypass the legislature on the pool plan. Parliament, he said, will be called upon to ratify all agreements made with other nations on the making of their heavy industries.

He pointed out that Government planner Jean Monnet was now in Germany to talk with the Allied High Commissioners about the plan.

Asked by Rightist Deputy Adolphe Ammeran if France would agree to limit the pooling to Germany alone, M. Schuman said: "We will not be alone in the negotiations, but frankly I cannot say whether, if we were, we would refuse to limit the plan to Germany. Do not forget that, until the end of the occupation statute, Germany has a special status."

The Conservatives, pursuing their policy of high-lighting election issues, challenged the government's housing programme by forcing a vote. This was defeated by 239 votes to 293.

Health Minister Aneurin Bevan, in replying to the debate, said, "It won't be very long before we go to the country again," meaning there would be another general election before long.

Father Acquitted Of Mercy Killing

DETROIT, Tuesday (Reuters). — Eugene Braunford, 32-year-old professional musician, was acquitted today on grounds of insanity in the "mercy killing" of his crippled daughter. A jury of nine women and three men deliberated for two hours before reaching the verdict.

Braunford had killed his crippled daughter, aged 29, a year ago, and then turned the same pistol on himself in an attempt at suicide. He pleaded temporary insanity.

Chinese Ask U.K. to Clarify Relations

HONG KONG, Tuesday (UP). — The Chinese Communist Government today asked Britain to clarify for the third time its position regarding diplomatic relations in view of the "extremely unfriendly attitude" Britain had demonstrated toward Peking.

Spokesmen for the Communist foreign Ministry reviewed recent Chinese-British relations and charged inconsistency between British statements and acts. The Peking statement said that the last British note which was transmitted verbally through the Charges d'Affaires in Peking on March 17, contained Britain's answers to questions which the Chinese had raised earlier, namely British support in the U.N. and the British attitude towards Nationalist organizations and property still in British territory.

Peking, however, the statement said, considered these answers unsatisfactory. The Foreign Ministry spokesman said that "this action not only proved that the British Government has not respected the rights of property and assets, but also represented an extremely unfriendly attitude towards the democratic republic of China."

Garreau: Plan Can't Be Implemented
LAKE SUCCESS, Tuesday (PTA). — M. Roger Garreau said today that he expected to receive this week a memorandum from the Israel Government rejecting the Council's statute for internationalizing Jerusalem but containing counterproposals of a very conciliatory nature.

M. Garreau also said that no response had been received from King Abdullah and that he expected none, a fact which he considered "extremely discouraging and incorrect." The Trusteeship Council at its last session had requested observations on the statute from the two governments.

M. Garreau felt, therefore, that the Council's session beginning June 13 would be powerless to take any steps toward the implementation of the statute and would probably pass the problem on to the U.N. General Assembly for consideration.

More than 30,000 people crowded the central square to watch the ceremony. In reply to the presentation, Field Marshal Smuts said, "I do not think that any community on earth in recorded history has been chosen for a harder role than ours."
